Christopher R. Jackson
BA, University of California — Berkeley; MA, PhD History, Harvard University
Course: The Economics of Nation Building

Christopher R. Jackson grew up in the Bay Area and attended UC Berkeley, where he graduated summa cum laude with a degree in history. He went on to graduate work at Harvard University, where he received a Master’s and Ph.D. in history, studying under Charles Maier. His dissertation concerned the development of labor law in Germany from 1918 to 1945.

Over the past 21 years he has taught a wide variety of courses on history and the social sciences at a number of colleges in the Bay Area, including De Anza College, San Francisco State University, the University of California at Davis, and the University of California at Berkeley.

Thomas A Rider II
BA, US Military Academy; MA, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Courses: American Military History; The World Wars

Thomas Rider is a retired lieutenant colonel in the United States Army. He has published numerous articles and books on the history of conflict in the United States and is a member of the Society of Military History.

Stephanie Haydee Gonzalez
BA, MA, New York University
Courses: Religion, Peace and Conflict; International Conflict, Resolution and Change

Stephanie Gonzalez is a doctoral candidate in the Field of Latin America at the Graduate Center, City University, New York. She has taught such courses as History of the Caribbean and History of Modern Latin America at City University, New York.

Theodore Allen Wilson
BA, MA, Ph.D, Indiana University
Courses: War and Media: Conflict in the Digital Era; Theories of War and Conflict

Theodore Wilson has written numerous publications on WWII and foreign policy. He has served as examination chair for doctoral candidates. Dr. Wilson speaks English, German and French and traveled abroad extensively.
Owen L. Roberts, Sr.
BS, University of Maryland; MA, Oklahoma City University
Courses: War and Media: Conflict in the Digital Era; The Economics of Nation Building

Owen Roberts is eager to instruct new and continuing education student professionals in general business, criminology, history of conflict using a unique combination of practical experience as a parole officer, adult corrections case manager coupled with seventeen years of experience as a United States Army Comptroller, and financial field manager and 13 years as an adjunct professor.

Matthew Powell
MA, University of New Mexico; PhD, University of California, Davis
Courses: Religion, Peace and conflict, Practices of Peace and Conflict, and Research Seminar in the History of Conflict

Matthew Powell’s primary research and teaching interest is the African Atlantic. Matthew is a founding board member of the Umoja Community, a statewide organization consisting of 30-plus community college campuses that facilitates the transfer and degree acquisition of African American students.

Mickey Huff
BA, MA, Youngstown State University
Courses: War and Media: Conflict in the Digital Era and Theories of War and Conflict

Mickey Huff is the director of Project Censored and is on the board of directors for the Media Freedom Foundation. He is currently professor of social science and history at Diablo Valley College in the San Francisco Bay Area, where he is co-chair of the history department. Huff is co-host with former Project Censored director Dr. Peter Phillips of the Project Censored Show. Huff’s work has appeared in numerous academic journals and books (published by Praeger, Palgrave Macmillan, Emerald) and has been published by many online news and commentary sites.